

Teaching by Design

Vortrag der Fulbright-Gastprofessorin Erin Marie Jarry,
University of New Mexico

Universal Design of Learning and Teaching

03.04.2019

12:00 Uhr

Festsaal, 4.0.004

Universal Design for Learning (UDL) is an approach to planning and designing curriculum that enables all students to have access to meaningful learning opportunities. Universal Design was founded on principles in architecture that the design of buildings, environments, and products can be adapted so that all individuals have access. I will discuss the principles of UDL as they are related to curriculum planning and draw connections between designing environments and lessons that are accessible for all students.